To whom it may concern,

I am writing in reference to Ryan Reed. I've known Ryan for four years, and have worked with him closely in connection with the church at which I am employed. He was introduced to me by a seminary professor who thought very highly of him. For one year he worked principally with our high school ministry as a seminary intern. At his own initiative he became involved more broadly in the life of our church, preaching, teaching, and developing collegial relationships with adults in our community.

My experience of Ryan was entirely positive, and I can recommend him without reserve. He is highly capable, motivated, and has exceptional relational gifts. Ryan possesses a rare level of self-awareness, and humility; while also embodying a self-confidence that creates a sense of security in others.

While he is specifically gifted for ministry with young people, Ryan also has great potential for ministry with adults. I would be glad to speak further about Ryan if necessary. He is an exceptionally fine man, and would quickly become an asset in any community in which he is given the opportunity to serve.

Sincerely yours,

Christian Andrews
